

Imagine a world...

Where housewives win the Nobel Prize in physics, poker-playing children gamble over their bedtimes, and metaphorical elephants pirouette in the den.

Where disappointed minor leaguers, frustrated therapists, and small-time crooks tell you their side of the story, four and a half minutes at a time.

That's the world of

Sam Bayer

Literate. Resonant. Exuberant.

Meet your boisterous narrator/guide, Sam Bayer: a man who will literally dance his characters across the stage. A composer, songwriter and performer for more than 25 years, Sam grew up in Cleveland, Ohio, the musical child of Joplin, Chopin and good old Midwest rock'n'roll. His latest live EP, Thirds, brings 9 live gems from his universe to yours.

Sam's "Millennium Song" has been covered by Dan Hart on "The Life of Dan"; in 2004, his ska-tinged ode to childhood, "Putting Sophy to Bed", appeared on Boston's Best Singer-Songwriter Showcase V, alongside such Boston notables as Deb Pasternak, Julie Dougherty and Thea Hopkins.
